Our Challenge

Dear friends,

The prophet Jeremiah personifies both the grandeur and the misery of being a prophet. He was called to preach an unpopular message at a time when the people were feeling good about themselves. His courage was rewarded by his own people with social ostracism and physical violence, but he remained steadfast in his commitment to God's truth. In our second reading this weekend from St. Paul, he suggests to the earliest Christian community in Corinth, Greece, that, with proper growth comes a change in our perspective. When we were children, we thought and spoke as children. As mature adults we come to see that the rules and requirements of childhood aimed at preparing us to be adults who knew that the greatest gift of God's Spirit is love. Love is the chief evidence of spiritual maturity. The people of Jesus' hometown at first welcomed him and admired his growing popularity. When he began to speak God's truth to them, however, they were offended that this boy they had watched grow up was so arrogant. They shut their ears and their hearts to the very person God had chosen to reveal to the world the way, the truth, and the life. Psychoanalyst Erich Fromm wrote a small classic called The Art of Loving. It is based on his conviction that, while we have the capacity both to love and to be loved, actually loving is an art that must be learned. We learn it primarily from those who love us. At the heart of the Christian faith is the affirmation, "We love because God first loved us." (1 John 4:19) People of all ages and stations in life need love. This need becomes especially critical, however, for those in challenging or threatening circumstances. Our challenge is to remember that we were created in love and we were created for love. This explains much of the unhappiness and dissatisfaction in our world. There is a fundamental maladjustment in not being able--or willing--to give and receive love. Ultimately the human need for love is a part of our need for God. Even the most meaningful human love does not meet our deepest need. St. Augustine said, "Thou hast made us for Thyself and our hearts are restless till they find their rest in Thee." A short prayer based on this quote is one that, by way of trivia, Eleanor Roosevelt always carried in her purse: 'O Lord, keep me at tasks too hard for me that I may be always driven to Thee for strength.'

Have a good week!

Love and prayers,
Father Randy

FIRST RECONCILIATION NEWS

Parents will have a choice in choosing when their child will receive their First Reconciliation:

Option 1: Our communal celebration of First Reconciliation with a number of guest priests to assist Fr. Randy Cuevas will be on Saturday, February 5, 2022, at 10:00 AM in the church. Parents and First Reconciliation Candidates attend this event.

Option 2: SAS candidates may receive their First Reconciliation among a smaller gathering of classmates in church during a school day, supervised by Mrs. Tricia Greely and Ms. Edie Boudreaux.

Parents may be present but won't be seated with the children. A similar school night Wednesday, February 9, 2022, at 6:00 PM, Opportunity will be available just for PSR candidates, which parents will also attend, if they choose this option.

Option 3: Parents may bring any candidate to any of our Regularly scheduled times of Reconciliation (published in weekly church bulletin) in the Reconciliation Room in church. Stewardship through Offering alloysius.org/offering

"See, I am doing something new! Now it springs forth, do you not perceive it? In the wilderness I make a way, in the wasteland, rivers."

Isaiah 43:19

Stewardship through Offering is neither a secular term, nor a code word for fund raising. Stewardship is a way of life. It is the wise use of all that we are and have – knowing that what we are, and will become, comes from God. He has called us to be wise stewards of the gifts that He has given us.

As you consider how you can spring forth through stewardship, reflect with us, the Stewardship through Offering Committee, on how we can follow Jesus when He said, "Where your treasure is, there your heart will be also."
